

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES DISSERTATION WORKSHOP IN THE DOLOMITES

JUNE 19 - 22, 2016 | ITALY

WORKSHOP

The Bruno Kessler Foundation's Research Center on International Politics and Conflict Resolution (FBK-CERPIC) organizes a dissertation workshop on international studies each summer in Terzolas near Madonna di Campiglio, Italy.

The three-day workshop brings together PhD students from across Europe and the rest of the world to present and refine their dissertation research, and to build connections with doctoral students from other universities. The workshop precedes the annual two-day conference of the Standing Group International Relations of the Italian Political Science Association, which will take place this year in Trento on June 23-25, 2016.

The workshop is especially interesting for PhD candidates who are the stage of working on or completing their dissertation proposals or prospectuses as well as those who are at the writing up stage and post-docs who are turning their dissertations into books and/or articles. Participants will make short presentations on their research topics, which will then be assessed and commented upon in ninety minute sessions by other students, as well as internationally-renowned scholars from across the globe. Graduate students will have the opportunity both to have their own research discussed, and to see and comment on what others are doing. Participants will emerge with stronger, more focused research proposals, and wider professional networks.

Accommodation and meals will be provided by the organizers; participants only have to cover their travel expenses (flights to Verona and a train ride to Trento).

Oxford students can apply to the Cyril Foster and Related Funds for travel grants.

Applicants should send a CV and a cover letter (with specific info about year of enrollment, Phd Research Topic, any relevant experience, methodological approach) to: summer-workshop@fbk.eu by Friday, March 4, 2016. Up to 25 participants will be selected for the workshop and the selection results will be available by March 25, 2016.
